THE GAZETTE.

THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 25, 1858.

THE WIFE OF CRAWFORD AT THE INAUGURATION OF THE STATUE OF WASH-INGTON IN RICHMOND, Feb. 22d, 1858. They raised the statue to its throne, Neath fair Virginia's sky, The noblest here of the earth, Whose memory cannot die;

And there, upon his day of birth, In his loved native clime, He tower'd, as in his manhood's morn, Majestic and sublime. But he who, with Promethean power,

Could mould the shapeless clay, And wake the chisel'd bronze to life, Where was his own that day? He stood not 'mid the gallant throng To answer to his name, Nor on his temples bind the wreath

That genius wins from fame. Yet one there was, with pallid cheek And ever-dropping tear; Dwelt she not in his heart of hearts? Why comes the mourner here?

She led her children by the hand, Their father's work to see, And hear the guerdon of his praise From high-toned chivalry. And silently that prayer arose

Which none but mothers know, That all his virtues in their souls Might root and heavenward grow; Though o'er her spirit darkly hung, Like curtaining pall of dread, The shadow of a foreign tomb-The image of the dead.

True Wife! true Mother! noblest hearts With tender pity stir, And soften even the exulting shout

In sympathy for her; While at the glorious Chieftain's feet, Twined with the laurel, lay A leaflet of that holy love Which cannot fade away.

THE MAN WHO KNOWS HIS PLACE. A rare, a mythical character! It is often advertised, often believed in, but has never yet crossed my path. "Biggam is an excellent man—he thoroughly knows his place." I straightway seek Biggam's acquaintance; for a man who knows his place must be one of eagle eye, rapid intuition, and rare modesty. He cannot know his own place without knowing that of every one else; and as this is the most difficult of all social problems, I am naturally eager to see the man who can solve it. On investigation, Biggam turns out by no means an eagle. I find him a man of servile, timid, cringing disposition, acknowledging with great alacrity the superiority of those who are more wealthy or of more consequence than himself. He is either a flatterer or a "mush of concession." He does not know his place; he only knows that it is pleasant for others to have their assumption of superiority recognized, their opinions uncontradicted, their efforts unopposed. One of the most conceited men I ever knew-that is to say the man having the most exorbitant and unwarranted estimate of his own capacity-was one of those conceding, unopposing gentlemen said to "know their place." He knew his place so little that he was always attempting to do that for which he was utterly unfit, and always failing, but verbally acquiescing in his failure, and saying "I have not your talents, or success would have followed."-Blackwood. HOLMES ON CONTROVERSY. "If a fellow attacked my opinions in print would I reply? Not I. Do you think I consisting of reddish brown grains of pea size don't understand what my friend, the professor, long ago, called the hydrostatic paradoa examination, I have analyzed it and found it if you had a bent tube, one arm of which was the size of a pipe stem, and the other big enough to hold the ocean, water would stand at the same height in one as in the other .-Controversy equalizes fools and wise men in the same way-and the fools know it." Matrimony is said to consist of hot buckwheat cakes, warm beds, comfortable slippers, smoking coffee, round arms, red lips, to. &c., shirts exulting in buttons, redeem ed stockings, bootjacks, happiness, &c.; while single blessedness is made up of sheet iron quilts, blue noses, frosty rooms, ice in the pitcher, unregenerated linen, heel-less socks, coffee sweetened with icicles, gutta percha biscuits, flabby steaks, dull razors, corns, coughs and colds, rheumatism, gout, misery
